Article - Pritiskom na bilo koji članak se odlazi na stranicu sa sadržajem celog članka

Članak (gost)

Na stranici članka vidimo i navbar za gosta koji uključuje pregled po kategorijama. Zatim i sam članak sa njegovim kategorijama. Opšte informacije o autoru i neki njegovi slični članci.

The screenshot shows a web interface for a guest article. At the top is an orange navigation bar with a 'Logo' button and links for 'Articles', 'Write', 'Profile', and 'Login'. Below this is a grey category bar with buttons for '< Category1', 'Food stuff', 'Category3', 'Category4', 'Categ5', and '>'. The main content area features three category tags: 'Family', 'Lifestyle', and 'Holiday'. To the right of these tags are 'Like' and 'Dislike' icons. The article itself has a large image of a man and a young girl in a field. Below the image is a paragraph of text, followed by two sub-sections: 'Why 20 March?' and 'How did the idea start?'. On the right side of the article, there is a profile section for 'Jessica Wildfire' with an average rating of 4.9, and a list of 'From same author' with four article thumbnails.

There's more behind the International Day of Happiness than you might think. Find out more by reading the article and answering the questions.

You might think the International Day of Happiness is a day to practise positive thinking or to give thanks for the things in your life that make you happy. But it's actually a United Nations project which has a more serious purpose. The UN thinks happiness will only be for everyone when the people of the world are equal.

Why 20 March?

On this date (and also on 23 September), the centre of the sun is directly above the Earth's equator, which is called an equinox. On the equinox, day and night last for almost equal time all over the Earth. The equinox is felt by everyone on the planet, which matches perfectly with the idea behind the Day of Happiness.

How did the idea start?

The idea goes back to 1972, when the King of Bhutan, Jigme Singye Wangchuck, said that we should measure a country's progress by its happiness and not just how much it produces or how much money it makes. He called it Gross National Happiness (GNH). Again, it is more than just a nice idea. Bhutan developed a system to measure happiness based on things like people's psychological health, their general health, how they spend their time, where they live, their education and their environment. People in Bhutan answer about 300 questions, and the results are compared every year to measure progress. The government uses the results and the ideas behind GNH to make decisions for the country. Other places use shorter, similar versions of this kind of report, for

Korisnik

Početna (korisnik)

Ulogovanom korisniku je dostupan pregled svih članaka po kategorijama. Na vrhu se nalazi korisnički navbar koji je prisutan na svakoj stranici dok je korisnik ulogovan.

Članak - klikom na članak korisnik ide na stranicu tog članka

Profile - otvara se stranica sa korisničkim profilom

Write - otvara se stranica za pisanje članka

Articles - stranica sa svim člancima

Logout - korisnik se izloguje

Članak (korisnik)

Pored već pomenutih elemenata, ulogovan korisnik može da lajkuje ili dislajkuje članak. Takodje može i da testira svoje znanje o pročitanoj članku. Uočavamo i navbar sa svim funkcionalnostima koji je fiksiran.

Like, Dislike - korisnik ima mogućnost da lajkuje ili dislajkuje članak

Test yourself - otvara se stranica sa pitanjima koje testiraju znanje čitaoca

Profil autora - otvara se stranica profila autora

Pitanja (korisnik)

Na stranici uočavamo pitanja koja su bazirana na pročitanoj članku. Na kraju testiranja korisnik može da vidi rezultate.

The screenshot shows a web interface for a quiz. At the top, there is an orange navigation bar with a 'Logo' button and links for 'Articles', 'Write', 'Profile', and 'Logout'. Below this is a grey bar with category links: '< Category1', 'Food stuff', 'Category3', 'Category4', 'Categ5', and '>'. The main content area displays two questions, each worth 10 points. Both questions are identical: 'Question 69' and 'Question 70' ask, 'If you chose an answer to this question at random, what is the chance that you will be correct?'. Each question has four radio button options: (A) 25%, (B) 50%, (C) 60%, and (D) 25%. At the bottom of the question list is a 'Submit' button.

Odgovori - klikom na neki od odgovora, markira se da je on trenutno izabran, dok ne završimo test dugmetom submit, možemo menjati izabrane odgovore

Submit - test je gotov i dobija se informacija o postignutom rezultatu

Profil

Na stranici vidimo osnovne podatke i linkove ka drugim društvenim mrežama. Takodje vidimo i sve članke od tog korisnika sortirane prema rejtingu, i ocene na uradjenim testovima grupisane po kategorijama.

The screenshot shows a user profile for Jessica Wildfire (@Jess_W). The profile includes a bio, a bio update button, and social media links for Instagram and LinkedIn. Below the profile, there are two columns of content. The left column, titled 'My popular articles:', lists three articles: 'International Day of Happiness' (5 days ago, 89 likes, 2 dislikes), 'Human rights' (2 weeks ago, 62 likes, 0 dislikes), and 'Educational rights of minorities' (1 month ago, 43 likes, 1 dislike). The right column, titled 'My grades:', shows grades for three subjects: Business (45 articles read, 87% average score), Finance (25 articles read, 92% average score), and Food (11 articles read, 98% average score). Each grade entry has a 'See detailed results' link. The bottom of the page has two downward-pointing chevrons.

Below this is a grey breadcrumb trail: '< Category1 Food stuff Category3 Category4 Categ5 >'. The main form area includes a 'Title:' label with a text input field. Below that is a 'Content:' label followed by a rich text editor. The editor's toolbar shows options for paragraph, bold, italic, underline, strikethrough, link, unlink, list, and image. The editor's content contains the text 'We want to use a rich text editor for the project...' followed by two lines of text, 'Test' and 'Test', where the second 'Test' is underlined. Below the editor is a 'Categories:' label with a text input field and a '+' button. Underneath are two buttons labeled 'Added1' and 'Added2'. The form then lists four questions and answers: 'Question 1:' with an input field, followed by 'Answer 1:', 'Answer 2:', 'Answer 3:', and 'Answer 4:', each with an input field. To the right of each answer input is a 'Correct:' label and a checkbox. Below the last answer is a '+' button. At the bottom of the form is a 'Publish' button.
